<sup>1</sup>Using a successful schools model, the Basic Education Funding Commission (BEFC) determined that the adequate spending level in Pennsylvania is $13,704 per weighted student (current expenditures per BEFC's weighted student count). A school district receives an adequacy supplement depending upon how many students it has and how far below it is from that adequacy level. The BEFC recommended phasing-in the adequacy supplement over seven years, and the proposed 2024/25 budget makes the first year adequacy investment. <sup>2</sup>To qualify for the tax equity supplement, a school district's local effort rate (tax burden) must be above the 66th percentile. A school district's tax equity supplement amount is a function of its local effort rate (higher effort receives a higher supplement) and its local capacity (stronger tax base receives a lower or no supplement).
